"I speak of what I know when I say there were certain big interests that would have given John Mitchel the most remunerative private employment if he would have accepted it and abandoned the fight this year, and that Mitchel, although a man of most moderate means, refused, because he has it in him, ingrained in his very marrow, to try to render service to our people, because he has the vision that makes him understand that there can be no greater achievement than to devote oneself in very fact to making this city a better governed city, and the lot of the average man and average woman a better lot."

What Murphy and Hearst have sa's about each other in the past is highly creditable to both," remarked the Colcreatable to both," remarked the Col-onel in that crackling falsetto, and the hall was rocked by laughter. But for the "straightout Americanism" of Mayor Mitchel, the former President, New York Governor and Police Commissioner could ardly find words to phrase his convi tion. He said that it had made the whole country proud of New York. "The fees of Mr. Mitchel," he said. "have asked. Why should he drape blusself in the American flag" I can answer. It is because the flag would out of place on either of the two candidates.

This was another big moment for the Colonel first spoke to 3,000 men and women at Harlem Alver Park Ca-sino, 127th street and Second avenue; then to 2.500 more, all negroes, at Palsee Casino, 14 East 135th street, and finally to another 2,500 at Prospect Hall. on Prospect avenue. In the colored folks' meeting a woman also raised her voice for Hillquit, but was not molested. Nobody hollered for Hylan or Bennett, and interruptions were really negligible. In his principal speech at the Harlem Carino the Colonel said in part: "Mr. Mitchel has really translated into action what for thirty years I have known as aspirations among those who wished well to this city.
